Developments yesterday at the White House and in the Senate foreign relations committee strengthened the administration's policy of protecting American properties from confiscation

The net result of the day's proceed ings was to warn President Calles of Mexico that the United States government will assume a free hand in dealing with the situation in case the Mexican government attempts to put into effect any confiscatory laws agains American properties while discussion of the arbitration idea is under way.

The officers were elected at a meeting of the club in the Young Men's Christian association building Sunday. The faction seeking the injunction alleges that they had 80 supporters present whose applications for membership had not been honored as, they assert, they should have been.

Observing this state of affairs, the 33 members of this faction and their supporters walked out in a body, leaving their 47 opponents a clear field for electing their own officers. Now, leaders of the faction say, they will seek an injunction, restraining the new officers from holding office, and seizing the books of the club, to prevent the new officers from spending the club's money, unless the victorious faction will hold another election and give them a fair show.

Plans to Scatter Space for 811 Cabs Throughout the Capital.

Washington may have four times its resent number of public stands for taxicabs following a conference that has been called by Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, for Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in his office.

Representatives of all taxicab companies and all independent cab owners have been invited to the discussion. Not only the question of where cabs shall wait for fares will be talked over, but also the problem of handling public vehicles in the vicinity of theaters after performances:

vehicles in the vicinity of theaters after performances:

"Taxicabs are a public necessity," said Maj. Hease, "but as things are now they also partake of the character of a nuisance. They add considerably to traffic congestion. This is principally because of the practice of 'cruising,' the cabs lottering, slowly in motion, along busy streets, canvassing for passengers.

"I have decided the way to stop cruising is to increase the number of cruising is to increase the number of cruising is to increase the number of hack stands and then keep idle cabs at these stands. I also think it will do no great good to increase the number of stands slightly. The spaces designated in public streets now where cabs may wait will accommodate only about 200 vehicles. It is my intention to have a sufficient number to accommodate 811 cabs.

"The stands will not be all in the downtown section. They are not all there now. They will be scattered throughout the District, wherever there business for them.

Will Avoid Car Lines.

"It is not my intention to have them n streets where there are street cars but they obviously must be near enough to business houses to be convenient for prospective passengers. I expect some taxicab men will object to so great an increase in the number of stands, but the increase is going to be made, and I am going to try to get an agreement with them as to where the new locations shall be."

Several weeks ago a member of Congress discussed with Hesse the manner in which vehicles, especially taxicabs, crowd around theater entrances after night performances. About three weeks after the police chief undertook consideration of the complaint, Senator L. C. Phipps, of Colorado, wrote a letter prospective passengers. I expect some

Hesse said yesterday he had not seen the paper either before or after that action by the commissioners, but that, undeterred by that circumstance, he would take up the question of solicitation of after-theater patronage by taxicab furiers, as well as the matter of new hack stands, at his conference with the taxi men.

"What did you do then, Doctor?"
Norris was weeping and could hardly came very slowly.

"Did you think you were any physical match for Chipps? Was he

"He was a powerful man. I was no match for him."

"How many times did you shoot?"

"I don't know."

"Why don't you know, Doctor?"

Webb two days later and it was executed."

Mr. Anderson inserted a clause by which the buyer, whether Webb or Webb's principal, was to indemnify him should a letter from Commissioner of Internal Revenue Daniel C. Roper stating the $9.489.34 valuation for tax purposes prove not to be authentic or an official expression. Although he said on cross-examination that he had no thought that the valuation might be reversed it has been indicated that he might have grounds for attempted recovery from Henry Ford should the present suit go against the stockholders.

Earlier he told how, even in 1903, Henry Ford had the idea of "making automobiles one like the other as matches are made in a match factory or plins in a pin factory" in great quantities and so reducing the price by quantity production that the market would constantly broaden. "Why don't you know, Doctor?"
"I was too excited."
Dr. Norris said he then called his wife on the telephone: He said he was overwhelmed by the tragedy. He said he went to the district attorney's office and gave himself up.
The sermon referred to by Chipps was one preached by the defendant the Sunday before the slaying in which Mayor Meacham was mentioned. FIELDING—On Wednesday, January 19, 1927, at his residence, 16 Grant circle northwest, WILLIAM M., husband of Nettle Hause Fielding.

Prosecutor in China Is Said to Have Taken $34,000 in Dope Inquiry.

Shanghai, Jan. 21 (By A. P.).—
Leonard G. Husar, former United States district attorney for China, was arrested here today on a charge of having accepted $34,000 in gold in connection with an opium investigation. Bail was set at $15,000. Husar came to Shanghai three years ago and staged a sensation when, on seeing off some friends at Woosung, a short distance north of here, he boarded a steamer there with his fiancee, booked passage and was married by the captain.

The sequel to this romance appeared in the courts of San Francisco recently when Mrs. Husar sued for a divorce. Charges that her husband had accepted a bribe from opium smugglers were made in her petition.

The Housekeeper

Not yet this year, while the winds have been whistling around the white the broth is being made into the work and an occasional flurry of snow threatening the skies, have we had New England clam chowder and, as we said last year, this dish is really one of the very few excuses for the discomfort attendant upon cold weather, especially weather that shrieks at the window and sneaks in under the door, making a steaming hot chowder taste better than anything in the whole world.

Clams are very good at this season, as are oysters, and it is well to make use of them while they are in abund-

If clams are purchased in the shell it is well to allow them to stand overnight in a small tub of water, cold water, of course, with white cornmeal sprinkled over the top of the water. Each clam will promptly replace the material in its alimentary canal with the cornmeal, and the material that was in the clam when it was taken from the sea will be emptied from its body. This gives us a clam—shall we say "corn-fed" clam—with which to work and to eat, and is most desirable. When buying clams in the shells go over them carefully, throwing out all of the dead ones. This can be told by the shells, as a dead clam is housed in an open shell, and a live clam has his shell tightly closed.

Sand is always scattered through the folds in the body of a clam, and, therefore, the animal must undergo a thorough washing in several waters after has been removed from his shell. If his siphon is filled with sand, and it will be if he happens to hall from the zandy beaches, open the siphon up with a scissor and work out the sand. If the cornmeal has not been used as a cleanser it is well, almost necessary, to beaches, open the siphon up with a scissor and work out the sand. If the commeal has not been used as a cleanser it is well, almost necessary, to open the stomach of the animal also, and wash it out. These things may not seem especially pleasant here in black and white, but if we are to use foods that are not thoroughly known to us as to matters of their preparation it is necessary that we discover ways and means before we serve the articles to our families. Clams are a nourishing, delicious food, and a food with which not much else, save a green, need be served. Let us make use of this food while we may, but let us also know exactly the method of preparation, that the food may be as wholesome as it is nourishing and pleasing. If one has a servant and feels that, even after 'instruction, the clams may be slighted as they are gone over, the time will not be wasted if the lady of the house stands and line a ple it is clearly the method of preparation.

Clean and pick over one quart of clams, using one cup of cold water. Drain them, reserve the liquor, heat to the boiling point and strain. Chop the clams finely, put an inch square piece of fat salt pork in small pieces and try out. Add one onion thinly sliced to the pork and fry till light brown and place with the chopped clams in a stew pan. Boil two medium-sized potatoes, cut in very small pieces, until done and add these to the chowder with salt and pepper to taste and a pint and a half of milk. Bring the chowder to the boiling point and add the clam juice (not to exceed a cup and a half) and, thicken the whole to the desired consistency with flour and milk thoroughly blended. Add four tablespoonfuls of melted butter and serve very hot with crackers. Delicious!

our pie crust recipe we need not give over again I feel sure, for we have had it many times, and nearly all of our friends who are interested are using the recipe. A reader, to whom we have mailed a card telling her that today her recipe is printed, has asked for a "real good old-fashioned apple pie recipe," and to have it through the column as she has never seen more than the suggestion for one in the menu—never a recipe. This is because we have not had one since she joined, but a time ago we had the recipe in but a time ago we had the recipe full detail. Here, Mrs. K. G., is a go

If one has a servant and feels that, even after instruction, the clams may be slighted as they are gone over, the time will not be wasted if the lady of the house stands close by the side of the servant while the fish is prepared. It is always a marvel to me that shrimp, fresh or canned, is served as it is in cafes and restaurants. Seldom do we find the black vein removed, and seldom do we find the black vein removed, and seldom do we find the person about to eat the shrimp other than perfectly willing to eat vein and all. At least we can cut away the vein with a fork, if eat shrimp we must in public places. At home I hope we have our chowder recipe, and then the menus for the day.

BACKERS CONSIDER LEGAL FIGHT TO AID SMITH TOWARD SEAT

Suggestion Would Involve a Battle by Illinois Over Representation Rights.

SUPPORTERS PASS DAY PLANNING FOR MOVES

Case Goes Before Committee on Privileges and Elections Today.

Legal action against the United States Senate to compel it to sea Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, as the duly named representative of that State, wa among the proposals discussed yesterday by the supporters of the man barred Thursday at the Senate door by a vote

Thursday at the Senate door by a vote of 48 to 33.

If such a plan is followed—and it is not yet certain—it will be a part of a suggestion that the entire matter be made one between the State of Illinois and the Senate, and the point of attack be that the Senate by its action in denying Smith the right to take the oath has deprived one of the sovereign States of the representation to which it is entitled.

The effort to mandamus the Senate would be as unprecedented as the pro-tine Senate was in refusing to admit. the Senate was in refusing to admit him even temporarily to membership. Students of the highest court of the land were not inclined to think the justices would undertake to pass upon, the merits of the Senate's action, but would in all probability contend that they had no jurisdiction in the matter. The procedure, however, may be adopted by Smith and his lawyers. Yesterday was devoted by them to conferences on the various methods that may be employed when the matter comes before the committee on privileges and elections at 10 o'clock today.

Three Phases Considered

Would Make State Issue

That official would put on the stand only one witness, for the purpose of bringing out the fact that Smith was 30 years of age, a citizen of the United States and a resident of the State of Illinois for the past nine years. He would, it is said, rest his case after having developed that the senator-designate filled these constitutional qualifications, and let the committee and the Senate take such action as they saw fit.

Appeal to the Supreme Court would not be made until after the Senate had acted finally on Smith's right to the seat, and then the point would be made that the constitutional provision, which guarantees to each State two representatives in the Senate, had been violated.

The resembling on which the admost constitution of the right of appeal, and take the constitutional provision, which guarantees to each State two representatives in the Senate, had been violated.

The presumption on which the advisers of Smith are acting is that any public body may be mandamused for due cause, but legal minds in the Senate and outside fail to agree with this

Montmartre May Close Unless Taxes Are Cut

Paris, Jan. 21 (By A. P.) .- Montmartre today postponed its death for eight days. Operators of the night life resorts on the world-famous hill lecided not to dim the bright lights for another week at least.

Three hundred owners and man agers of cafes, cabarets and other Montmastre resorts met in the "hall of learned men" in the shadow of the collegiate buildings of the Sorbonne and decided to give Premier Poincare "another chance to reduce the tax de luxe from 40 per cent to 20 per cent," otherwise Montmartre must die because high taxes and poor business are making t unprofitable.

For three hours the academic walls ounded to the mournful oratory of florid faced men who dispens liquid cheer. A committee was ap pointed to call on Premier Poincare next week and demand a reduction of the amusement tax, with the ospect that Montmartre will close if it is refused.

A CONFLICT BETWEEN SOVEREIGNS.

The Mexican government has approved 'in principle" of the idea of arbitrating the controversy with the United States. The Senate committee on foreign relations has approved of a resolution suggesting arbitration with Mexico, with the proviso that American property shall not be confiscated pending the award of the arbitral tribunal.

Thus American public opinion is being led into the false notion that the controversy between the United States and Mexico will be submitted to arbitration. The public is told that this is merely a question of property, and that if it can not be arbitrated the country should abandon the pretense that it favors arbitration of international disputes.

But the controversy between the United States and Mexico can not be arbitrated. It is not merely a dispute over property. It is a conflict between sovereigns and their institutions.

For the time being Plutarco Elias Calles is president of Mexico and in control of that government. The Mexican constitution establishes the system of nationalization of property. Calles has decreed laws which propose to confiscate the property of aliens in pursuance of the Mexican constitution. The law of nations, universally respected except in Russia and Mexico, denies to all governments the right to confiscate private property. All civilized nations deny to their own governments the right to enact retroactive or confiscatory laws.

Upon this foundation governments are established. They could not survive if they did not protect their citizens and subjects in the use and enjoyment of property. No civilized government would risk collision with another by attacking the right of its nationals to use and enjoy property they had acquired. One of the most important attributes of a sovereign is the right and duty of protecting the property of its citizens. A government can not submit to arbitration this right and duty without risking impairment of its sovereignty.

If Mexico should confiscate an American battleship and then suggest that its right to confiscate should be arbitrated. its action would be no more flagrantly an attack upon the sovereignty of the United States than its attempt to confiscate the property of American citizens. The United States would be a poor sovereign, indeed, if it could protect only its own property and not the property of its citizens.

Mexico's attempt to assert the right to confiscate American and other foreign property is an attack upon the sovereignty of every nation affected. No government will arbitrate such a controversy, because no government can bargain away its sovereign powers.

This attack by Mexico upon the world's established law can not succeed. When the matter is fully analyzed, senators will be ashamed that they ever proposed to arbitrate such a question.

There is no possibility of a clash between the United States and Mexico if the sovereign right of the United States is not attacked. The United States is not guilty of any aggression. It respects every Mexican right.

There is no possibility of avoiding a clash with Mexico if the Calles government survives and proceeds to invade American rights. The United States, as protector of its own citizens and as guardian of the rights of European nations in this hemisphere against the aggression of American republics, will call

LAW FOR AVIATORS.

The Indiana State legislature is considering a bill establishing regulations and liabilities in aviation and aeronautics. Stunt and trick flying over thickly populated areas would be prohibited. Flying at low levels and the dropping of any object whatsoever would be a violation of the law, and hunting from airplanes would a misdemeanor. Lawful flight would be defined as operation of an airplane over land or water unless at such low altitude as to interfere with the then existing use of such land or water, or unless so conducted as to be danger ous to persons or property lawfully on the land or water beneath. The most interesting feature of the legislation, however, is that if adopted it will constitute a considerable contribution to the bibliography regarding States' jurisdictions, for one of its paragraphs provides that laws of the governing crime and misdemeanors would apply to aeronauts. The jurisdiction of the State extends to the very heavens themselves. A contract entered into by two persons flying thousands of feet above Indiana would be governed by the laws of the State.

Legislation governing aviation is both wise and necessary. Airplanes are beginning to occupy a prominent place in the economic scheme of the country, and the States must assume the duty of their regulation. The Indiana statute is a precursor of many others.

AIR MAIL DEVELOPMENT.

The Postoffice Department has received bids for air transport of mail between New York and Chicago. At least one of the bids is made by an established commercial aviation concern, which is successfully carrying air mail between Chicago and Dallas. In another column Howard E. Coffin, president of National Air Transport, Inc., discusses the problem of commercial aviation and shows how it can be made to pay, without the need of a Treasury subsidy, if the government and express companies

It is the desire of Postmaster General New to turn over air mail transport to private concerns, and no doubt he will take into consideration the arguments advanced by Mr. Coffin when he passes upon the bids for the New York-Chicago service. In seeking to popularize air mail service Mr. New has caused air mail 'rates to be revised and simplified, and there is no doubt that with a flat 10-cent rate per half ounce, applicable to the whole country the use of air mail will be greatly extended. thus bringing nearer the day when private enterprise will be justified in entering the field of operation. For the time being, however, any concern taking the New York-Chicago contract must be prepared to lose money.

The sum total of airplane mileage flown in the United States is supposed to be small in comparison with the mileage of long established air lines in Europe, but the fact has been revealed that the United States outstrips all the rest of the world in airplane mileage flown in 1926. There are about 4,000 privately owned planes in this country, and last year they flew not less than 17,000,000 miles. In addition to this mileage the army planes (number not disclosed) made 12,000,000 miles, and navy planes 7,000,000 miles.

The mileage made by airplanes in the United States during 1926 amounted to not less than 36,000,000 miles. This is equivalent to 75 round trips to the moon, or 100 years' travel of a railroad train running 40 miles an

But the mileage flown by airplanes last year s a mere prelude to what will come when air mail and express lines are developed.

DISTRICT "ECONOMY."

Following the sad experience of purchasing cheap automobile tags, delivery of which is more than two months overdue, the District of Columbia is facing another awkward situation with a shipment of cheap diplomas for distribution among the February graduates of the unior and senior high schools. Approximately 1,000 were ordered at a saving of slightly less than 3 cents each as compared to the former purchase price. Upon examination the papers proved so poor in workmanship that their rejection is indicated. As the result of an attempt to save less than $30, graduates will have to forego the thrill of receiving an actual diploma when called to the platform next month, and must content themselves with a dummy roll of paper, tied with ribbon, and bearing appropriate wording indicating that the West opposed it as a matter of retaliation. they are to be exchanged at a later date for he genuine article.

Diplomas have been purchased by the school board for many years, and it would seem that there should be a good idea as to what the sheepskins ought to cost. This year a new system was tried out under which the school board furnished the plates and the paper to the printer. Previously, new plates were made each year, an expense which school officials felt was unwarranted. Good printing presupposes good plates, however, and it is possible that the policy of purchasing new ones each year will have to be continued.

Economy, in its place, is a fine virtue. When carried beyond reason, however, it becomes a vice. It is to be hoped that out of the experience with license plates and diplomas the District authorities will learn something.

NIMRODS IN NEW YORK.

What may be done in restocking a State with game birds through the enforcement of an intelligent protective policy is exhibited in the figures compiled by the New York State conservation commission for the season of 1924-25, just issued by the commission in

Aside from a few flocks, privately owned on Long Island and in the valley of the Genesee. there were no Mongolian pheasants in New York in 1900, and nearly all the other game birds of the pheasant family had disappeared from the hills and valleys of the State. About the beginning of the present century the late Maj. Austin Wadsworth liberated several thousand pairs of pheasants bred on his estate, not, however, until after he had secured the passage of an act which declared a closed season for ten years. After that period had expired the shooting of male birds only was permitted on four specified days of each year. Severe penalties are enforced for violating the law, either through the killing of a hen pheasant or the shooting of male birds on other than "open' days. The result of this policy of conservation has been an enormous increase in the number of these beautiful birds throughout the State. Wyoming county adjoins Livingston, which was the county in which the Wadsworth flocks were bred and turned loose. The report of the commission shows that there has been a steady increase in the number taken in that one the four days of open season in 1924 being 2,473.

New York is not regarded as particularly well stocked from the standpoint of the hunter yet the report of the commission shows that there are 34 varieties of game and fur-bearing animals under the eye of the commission, and that during the season covered by the report there were taken 1,592,179 pieces, with the hunting season closed for two weeks in the Adirondacks and Catskills on account of forest fires, these fires resulting in a falling off of 3,000 in the number of deer killed.

Among the principal fur-bearing animals of the State are skunks, muskrats, foxes of several varieties squirrels and mink. The animal of greatest value for his fur is the skunk, but he is not so common as formerly and the take of pelts of that beautiful but indiscreet animal shows a heavy falling off in the past few years. There were 213,085 trapped in the State in 1919, and only 90,072 in 1924.

New York State, while not exactly a paradise for the hunter, may still be regarded as a fairly good field, especially during the days in October and November when "the law is off" the highly decorated Mongolian pheasant.

FARM RELIEF AGAIN.

In his recent impassioned speech in the House defending the revised and renovated McNary-Haugen bill, Representative Dickinson

I appreciate the fact that we are asking for a new policy. I would like to have discussed the adoption of the American protective tariff system in this country. When the people of Ohio produced more foodstuffs than they could assimilate and they were like Iowa is now, having all kinds of food and no place to market it, they were the people who came in here under Henry Clay and dictated the nomination of Adams for President and forced a protective tariff system upon the country; and it took them ten long years to cram down the throats of New England that a protective tariff would help the people of that section. Now we have come back to cram down another situation and that is this, that the New England States, if they want the tariff, must help out the Western States. In other words, they must give us equality in purchasing power.

Mr. Dickinson fails to tell the whole story, thus creating a false impression. He desires to put the tariff situation of 1824-1828 in the same class with the situation in 1926. They are totally different.

When the protective tariff of 1824, under the guidance of Mr. Clay, was enacted, John Quincy Adams was not President. Massachusetts, a commercial State, was opposed to the bill, and Webster spoke against it. It was one of Webster's great mistakes.

The tariff of 1824 was not sufficiently pro tective, and the manufacturers of Massachusetts were on the verge of ruin. This situation altered the views of Massachusetts and of all New England. When Adams was inaugurated President in 1825, one of the first things he encountered was a memorial to Congress from Massachusetts for an increase in import duties-more protection. The West had no part whatever in changing the views of Massachusetts or President Adams.

The people of Ohio did not dictate the nomination of President Adams, for the reason there were no nominating conventions then Adams was elected President by the House of Representatives. He became President in March, 1825.

The economic condition of Eastern manufactures in 1826 was responsible for the tariff of 1827, which passed the House and was defeated by a tie vote in the Senate. In this battle the States of the middle West, including Ohio, opposed the bill on the ground that is gave the Eastern manufacturers more protection than the middle Western producers, particularly the wool growers.

In 1827 the middle West, including Ohio, was in the same position as Iowa in 1926fighting adequate protection on the ground that the tariff gave the East more protection than the West. Ohio aided in defeating protection in 1827, just as Iowa threatens to defeat protection in 1927. Ohio did not choke protection down the throat of New England. New England in 1827 fought for protection;

Ohio and the middle West soon learned that the system of protection aided that section even more than New England or other parts of the East. The South is now learning the same lesson. This plea of "equality of purchasing power" is the same old animal in new clothes. Iowa will not gain anything by driving a wedge between the sections. Ohio tried it in 1827 and failed. It helped to split the party of protection and to elect two free trade Presidents in succession.

MOTOR CAR LICENSES.

The traffic director recently has recommended to the District commissioners a new regulation designed to make effective the re ciprocal license tag agreement between the District and surrounding States. Several years ago Congress lowered the local license fee to $1, at the same time imposing a gasoline tax of 2 cents a gallon. This equalized the price of gasoline between Maryland and the District, and established a reciprocal agreement under which all jurisdictions recognized the tags of

Whereas the single flat rate covers licenses for any size or make of automobile in the District, both Maryland and Virginia have established sliding scales based on horsepower. In the former, owners are assessed 32 cents per horsepower. The Ford owner, therefore, must pay $7.36 each year for the privilege of operating his automobile, and the licensee of a 36-horsepower machine, practically the highest rating of the modern automobile, is assessed $11.32. The Virginia rate is 70 cents, taxing the Ford owner $15.10 for his tags, and the owner of the 36-horsepower machine, $25.20 The Virginia motorist also is taxed 4 1/2 cents on every gallon of gasoline purchased.

To save money residents of neighboring States from time to time have procured tags at the District building, despite the fact that it is against the law. As a remedy the traffic direct tor requests a regulation providing that "no person shall be entitled to receive registration tags for a private motor vehicle unless the owner of the car is domiciled in the District of Columbia," and specifying a penalty of a fine not exceeding $100 for obtaining registration tags by any misrepresentation whatsoever. In fairness to the other States the regulation should be approved.

American Commercial Aviation Can Succeed Without Federal Subsidy

By HOWARD E. COFFIN-

(Editor's Note—Mr. Howard E. Coffin was a member of the Morrow Air board, appointed by President Coolidge two years ago to recommend a comprehensive program for the development of commercial aviation. He is president of National Air Transport, Inc., which organization recently made a proposal to the Postoffice Department to undertake the operation of the New York-Chicago division of the transcontinental air mail route.)

Commercial air lines carrying United States mail exclusively are at is a candidate, and then such a foolish present operated at a loss in this country. However, it is my firm conviction that the combination of air mail and air express will produce a profit, thus rewarding with success the attempt of private enterprise to If Mr. Coolidge is such a weakestablish American commercial aviation on a self-sustaining basis without the necessity for cash subsidies from the Federal government such the Republican senators laud him so as are now paid by every nation in Europe.

The proposal submitted several days ago to the Postoffice Department | two years, and if he is weak our astute by National Air Transport, Inc., for the operation by private enterprise senators should have found it out beof the New York-Chicago division of the transcontinental air mail route, is based on eight months of successful operation of the Chicago-Dallas possible that the senators are eaten up line during which 475,000 miles have been flown without the loss of a single piece of mail matter.

If we secure this contract, we will inaugurate simultaneously the first air express in this country. Recently, after eighteen months of negotiation, we were awarded an exclusive contract for this purpose by the American Railway Express Co. for operating air express service between New York, Chicago, Dallas and intermediate points. We believe from our past experience that the combination of air mail and air express will provide sufficient tonnage to fill the cargo capacity of our airplanes which is necessary in order to operate at a profit, Unlike Europe, our country does not subsidize commercial aviation. It must earn its own way, which is exactly what it should do. Subsidies educated and Dr. Ballou knows better lead to abuses and to extravagant operating costs. Linked with the air mail, this air express service will, with the sanction of the Postoffice Department, be operated via Detroit, thus connecting and directly serving on a through route the five largest cities in the United States-New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago, and at the same time

Commercial aviation must be made the foundation of our national defense in the air. It is therefore very much in the national interest realize that Dr. Ballou has given the that air transport shall be developed upon a sound economic and comwill have gobbled up the Falls, the mercially profitable basis. We believe that our sliding scale bid meets is the admiration of educators of all this requirement perfectly and brings the maximum advantage to the sections of the country, and it is ingovernment and to the public through the automatic reduction of rates

Its general manager is Col. Paul Henderson, who, while serving as Second Assistant Postmaster General, first inaugurated transcontinental day and night air mail service under government operation. He has the distinction of having established the first night air transport service in the world, and is considered the best informed man on commercial aviation in the United States.

It was organized at a time when the future of commercial aviation New York Evening Post: Italy's in this country was very dark and when there existed in law no provision drastic move to protect its art treas- for Federal cooperation. There were then no air laws charging any agency of the government with the slightest responsibility in the direction, encouragement or regulation of air traffic. The development of air transport in America was at a standstill. Anti-American propaganda had succeeded in stifling our aircraft trade in export fields. Every venture in this direction had proven a financial failure. Foreign aircraft companies, whose European activities were and still are financed through heavy government subsidies, were planning the establishment of subsidiary air transport projects in the United States. This produced an intolerable situation in view of the intimate and vital relationship of commercial aviation to our whole scheme for the national defense.

This, then, presents the picture that confronted the group of men who were called together in the spring of 1925 to organize and finance National Air Transport, Inc. They were then told in no uncertain terms (80,309 miles flown, or more than National Air Transport, Inc. Opposing Coolidge

To the Editor of The Post-Sir: Will you, or can you, explain why it is that members of the United States Senate will howl themselves hoarse during a campaign to secure the election of a man to the Presidency, and then, as soon as he is inducted into office, oppose everything he suggests? Why is it that he is such a good man, such a wise man that the country perfectly safe in his hands when he highly in 1924? He had been President fore supporting him in 1924. Is it not with their own egotism, and that it is not Coolidge who is weak but the sena ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

Bossing the School Board. To the Editor of The Post-Sir: I see by the papers that Dr. Ballou, ou superintendent of schools, is accused of bossing the school board, and influ encing the appointments of members that has happened to our schools. The people pay taxes to have their children than the school board how they should be educated. It matters little who is on the school board. Its members are usually men of high standing in the community who have made a success in their business which is not that of teaching. The people of Washington do not seem to National Capital a school system which deed fortunate that he is permitted to carry on this important work without interference from a body of men who know nothing of pedogogics. No self-respecting managing editor of a newspaper would consent to have hanging who have no experience in the newsply to our school superintendent. The school board, however, can make itself useful by attending to the business end of the school system, leaving the pedogogical branch to the super intendent. This, I have been informed, is beginning to be the practice here in Washington. I have never been able to understand why there should be to understand why there should be constant squabbles over the member-ship of the school board. Mme. Sabanieva Makes Ideal Cho-Cho-San, Singing With Dramatic Force.

ALTHOUSE IS SUPERB IN PINKERTON ROLE

Samossoud Is Called Before Curtain With Principals: Local Chorus Praised.

The matchless music of Puccini, the poetic fancies of John Luther Long Is and a cast well acquained with the professional requirements of their art made last night's performance of "Madame Butterfiy" at the new Auditorium a musical event of the season.

Through a happy coincidence, the prima donns role of the hapless Madame Butterfly was sung by the Greek soprano, Mme. Thalia Sabarileva, and the proceeds of the performance, through a special arrangement, were devoted to the aid of the children of Greek refugees. The Minister of devoted to the aid of the children of Greek refugees. The Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos headed the list of patrons of the opera. In-spired perhaps by the fact that she was singing to help her fellow coun-trymen and that the performance was trymen and that the performance was a project of her husband, Jacques Samoussoud, who directed the orches-tra, Mme. Sabanieva warmed to her noble task and her singing was as rich in feeling as it was in beauty.

"Madame Butterfly" is an opera and to this phase of its score last night's cast did full justice. Mme. Sabanieva was a satisfactory Cho-Cho-San. She gave dramatic force to the San. She gave dramatic force to the role and much artistry was manifest in her impersonation of the deserted Japanese wife. Her voice was sweet and well modulated, highly trained and capable of expressing the gamut of emotion, all of which is heavily drawn on by the dramatic requirements of "Madame Butterfly."

Impersonation is Real.

Mme. Sabanleva is the ideal size for Cho-Cho-San, petite and graceful, and her Orientalisms made her impersonation a very real one indeed.

The art of the prima donna sustained last night's Butterfly in the great "Finale Ultimo." Here was stark tragedy with plognant musical themes making it still more tragic and heartbreaking. The singer's voice and the orchestra competed in operatic grandeur of tone.

orchestra competed in operatic grandeur of tone.

Again in the most famous air in the opera, haunting one's memory, "Un Bel di Vedremo" (Some Day He Will Come), il Madame Sabanieva exhibited prima donna qualities. Her song to her child "Sal Cos, Ebbe Cuore," was pathetically sweet, too.

The sweetness of Mr. Althouse's voice and the gentie modulations of which it is capable was well suited to this one of his best roles, Lleut. Pinkerfon. Not In having a robusto voice by any manner of means, but by artistic handling he managed to encompass the requirements of the score. In the duets and trios, Mr. Althouse was easily superior to the other voices, and in the "Oh Kindiy Heavens" duet he sang, with consumate beauty of tone, his share of the full-throated song of love, which enwrapt the lovers in a drapery of dreams.

On the whole, the orchestra, however, put up a creditable performance when is is remembered it had only a short time to rehearse the score, and that it had not had the advantage of previous organization work together. Mr. Samossoud is an inspiring leader. Nor should be forgotten the work of another principal, Grace Yeager, mezzo-soprano, well versed in operatic work, who was Susuki, and a good one. Her voice was mellow and of good range, and it came into its own in that levely duet of the flowers, "Tutti I for." In that masterpice of tonal color, the hues and tints of the blossoms must be contributed by the deep tones of Susuki, while the joyous tones of the prima donna follow the flight of the petals into the air, higher, higer still and higher.

Dramatic in Tragic Scene.

Dramatic in Tragic Scene.

Miss Yeager showed true dramatic power in the last tragic scene when she tried to avert Butterfly from her announced intent of death with honor rather than life with dishonor. In the trio with Pinkerton and Sharpless, another high point of the opera, she also was vocally and dramatically adequate. The other principals who did well included M. Reschiglian, as Goro, wnose clever character byplays were as good as his really escellent voice; M. Marwick, who doubled in the roles of Yamadori and the Uncle Priest most satisfactorily. Ovation to Conductor.

Jacques Samossoud, the conductor and impressario of the opera, was no stranger to Washington. An ovation was tendered to him as he took his place in the leader's stand. As usual, Mr. Samossoud conducted in a scholarly, earnest manner and it was evident that his musicians were appreciative of his skill, for they responded well to his baton and supported the singers with meticulous care. In response to calls for him, Mr. Samossoud appeared with the principals of the opera at the close of the second act.

Several times the orchestra seemed too loud and to overshadow the singers. This is a fault that should be conquered in future productions that Mr. Samossoud may have in contemplation, and it was lamentable last night when the real beauty of Mme. Sabanleva's voice was obscured by too loud an accompaniment.

On the whole, the orchestra, how-

Bible Lands Authority to Write Weekly for The Post

Dr. William T. Ellis, who has penetrated into every part of the Near East mentioned in the Old and New Testaments, will contribute to The Washington Post, beginning next Saturday, January 29, a Weekly Religious Article, based upon the International Sunday School Lesson.

These articles, by the most widely-circulated writer upon religious topics in the world, are a fresh and fearless analysis of the life of today in the light of the Bible. Without controversy or sectarianism, and in the popular style of a trained journalist, Dr. Ellis treats the assigned portions of Scripture as literature for today. With sincere reverence and sound knowledge, and entirely without flippancy, he interprets the Bible as a Book for human living.

These Lessons in The Post possess a quality which no similar articles, appearing anywhere else may share—the recent, personal, intimate knowledge of the background of the whole Bible. Dr. Ellis has the unique distinction of being the only man who has ever traveled over the entire geographical area of the Scriptures.

Bible Students of every name and Church should know that the Ellis Sunday School Lesson is to be found every week on the Religious Page of The Washington Post. Present readers should relay the news to their

Thrift Week Data Furnished Churches

Tomorrow is "Share With Others Day" in thrift week and the committee in charge, with Dr. W. L. Darby as chairman, has furnished information regarding its opportunities to pastors. Sunday school superintendents, presidents, and Bible classes and of young peoples' societies urging observance of the day.

Some pastors will bring the matter before their people in church bulletins, others will speak of it in connection with their announcements and some will discuss the subject in their semons. The organizations mentioned in many cases will present the theme to their members. The committee earnestly requests the cooperation of the largest possible number of persons on this occasion.

The Twenty-Third Psalm

The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou prepareth a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

VETERAN LOAN ACTION PREDICTED BY GREEN

Chairman Urges Congress Supplement Bank Authority on Certificates. (By the Associated Press.)

(By the Associated Press.)

Early action on legislation to authorize government loans to former service men on their bonus certificates was predicted yesterday by Chairman Green of the House ways and means committee, after Director Hines, of the veterans' bureau, had discussed the subject with committee members in executive session. He suggested that Congress supplement the authority given banks to make loans on the certificates by including the veterans' bureau and its regional officers.

President Coolidge is said to be in sympathy with the proposal, and Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, has introduced a bill to that end.

committee, has introduced a bill to that end.

Several House members have put in bills providing for veterans' bureau loans, among them Representative Rogers, Republican, Massachusetts, who is sponsoring one similar to the Smoot proposal, and it is expected that after holding brief hearings the ways and means committee either will report one of them or draft a composite measure. Director Hines told the committee yesterday that of 28,000 authorized banks, only 270 to date had reported loans.

THE STORY SO FAR.

THE STORY SO FAR.

A fine fur coat, a motor car, a diamond ring and other things have come as mysterious gifts to Fred Pullen, his wife and pretty daughter, Julia, as well as an offer of an excellent job for Pullen. Mrs. Pullen hints to Mrs. Hamilton, neighborhood gossip, that a fat man, who has been trying to flirt with Julia, sent the cities. Mrs. Hamilton sureads the word that gifts. Mrs. Hamilton spreads the word that Mrs. Pullen herself has been flirting with Mrs. Pullen herself has been flirting with strange men, and Sam Carille, young man friend of Julia's, is forbidden by his parents-to go to the Pullen house. Mrs. Pullen, over-come by word of the unfriendly gossip, takes to, her bed, while Julia goes out to call Carille on the telephone. When she is gone, Mrs. Pullen tells her husband that she also has weitten a note to the fat man, whom she has written a note to the fat man, whom she believes to be in love with Julia.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXI.

"You—you wrote to the fat man?"
was all he said.

His wife moved the damp cloth from her face. "Yes," she answered, her voice as tired as his. She took his hand before she went on. "I wasn't going to tell you. It was to be a surprise. I asked him to call tomorrow evening."

He turned out the light, leaving his wife wide-eyed in the darkness, and thoughtfully descended the stairs.

His daughter found him an hour later, sitting in the armchair, his chin buried in his bosom. The gir's eyes were sparkling and her lips bore a happy curl as she closed the front door and peered around the portiere that draped the living room entrance.

"Asleep, daddy?" she whispered, soft if."

"What's the matter?" she asked with quick interest. "Why is your voice so sad?"

She descended several steps.

"You don't plan anything violent, do you?" she continued with anxiety.

I told him to come here, but he said 'no'—he didn't want to lite if his folks asked him where he'd been. Wasn't that noble of him, papa?" She peered into her father's face, but went on without waiting for a reply. "And I told him all about everything—almost everything, anyray—and he's so excited! He says hell help us find out where the carcame from, and my ring, and mama's fur coate and the stays and mama's fur coate and he says I can keep the rung' if I want to!"

Her husband sighed. "Go ahead."

Julia threw back her head in a peal of laughter, and tears of mirth started down her cheek. "It's too funny," she gasped.

"Did you sign your own name—Mrs. Fred Pullen?"

I wrote it 'Mrs. Elsie Pullen' with the Mrs.' in parenthesis. Was that all right?"

Fullen got slowly to his feet, and paced the room a few moments, his wife watching him anxiously.

"Go to sleep," he said at last. "We've talked enough tonight, I think. I'll go downstairs. I want to study this over."

He made a wry mouth. "In a modified way," he said.

"But it IS funny!" she insisted. "Mama's romantic old darling. What wife wide-eyed in the darkness, and thoughtfully descended the stairs.

Julia had found work in a lawyer's officer, she said. "It isn't going to be hard. I just copy things now, and put them away in filing cases. But isn't the salary splendid—a hundred and fifty dollars a month?"

"I don't think he'll come at all," her daughter said.
"Indeed he will," Mrs. Pullen was positive about it. "I wrote him a nice letter, if I do say so myself."

She cleared the table with an abstracted air, and when her evening tasks were done, settled herself in the living room, alone. She wore her best dress, and a strand of imitation pearls which she had purchased especially for the occasion. Pullen and Julia, without comment, withdrew to the upper floor.

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

Never Cling To a Man.

Never Cling To a Man.

In answer to "Broken-Hearted," I do advise her to stiffen her backbone and let the young gentleman go. Make him welcome to go. If this is a whim, and he is allowed perfect liberty, he may come back. If he has tired of her and finds she is apparently able to bear it quite brightly, it may pique his vanity. If he really wants to leave her, she'll gain nothing by trying to keep him. If he thinks she is holding him, he will want to pull away. If she gives him nothing to pull against, he may linger. She must not cling. A man likes to pursue, but he doesn't like to feel caught.

I know it is hard to see affection silding away. A woman often feels that by one more effort she may secure the thing she values, but sometimes that effort sends it further from her, while by sitting still with her hands folded, or, better still, going out and about in the world, it might come back to her. If I could talk to "Broken-Hearted," I should say, "My dear, of course"

Not there's no use my telling you he's not worth all this, because perhaps he is, and even if he isn't, you think him so and that makes him so to you. But, if he wants to break with you, break at once. Break as if you were rather relieved. If you can't do that, break with caim-ness and he needn't know how you feel underneath." I know a young woman who was engaged, as you have been, to a young man who suddenly found out that he preferred her friend. The friend was the kind of a girl who can't see a man without setting her cap at him. I find no fault with that—ti's part of a feminine nature. The first girl had the sense to let him go just at little before he was ready, and when he made a show of remonstrance and asked why, she said: "Grace has worked so hard for you, I think she ought to have you." It was a nasty one for Grace, but the result was that the man thought better of his second choice and came back.

There is only one way to finesse to catch a King; but when finessing to catch a Queen, the finesse frequently can be taken either way.

In the hands which this week have illustrated the principle of so finessing that the danger hand will not obtain the lead if the finesse lose, the only cases considered have been finesses made with the hope of catching a King. Today we consider finessing to catch a Queen.

Sometimes when the Queen finesse presents itself, it is exactly like the King finesse, viz., possible to take in one way only. That would be the case if an Ace were opposite a King-Jack or a King opposite an Ace-Jack, or when the Ace-King were in one hand; but in either of the first two cases, when there is in either hand the Ten also, the finesse can be taken either way; and when the third round, both Hearts and Diamonds should be finessed so as to let part with the finesse loss. Answer—This is not a very easy problem. Some of my readers have thought that the remedy might lie in a surgical operation, but this I would-firmly discourage. I am, in fact, discussing this radical and dangerous method in my Sunday article tomorrow.

If the fat seems to be centered only around the nose and has always been there, it may be difficult or even impossible to do anything about it. If, on the other hand, it is a recent acquisition and seems to have come about with a general increase in the weight, then the remedy lies in normalizing the weight throught diet.

In any case, the best and safest method to adopt is that of gentle massage. Anoint the fingers with a creamy lotion so that the skin will not be irritated, and—use a rotary massage movement, paying special attention to the base of the nostrils.

Railway obligations were iffrm. Interest centered in Pennsylvania Issues, notably the 3½s and the general 5s, while St. Louis & San Francisco 6s, Western Maryland 4s and Erie general 4s and envertible 4s, series D, also made good gains. The St. Paul issues continued to attract buying interest in reflection of the Federal court's approval of the recent sale of the property to the reorganization managers.

High yielding foreign securities were again popular, with price movements rather narrow. South American issues froved attractive and there was some activity in Belgian and French bonds, as well as those of some foreign industries. Paris, Lyons Mediterranean 6s and 7s were in fair demand.

Buying of Federal government loans was lighter than for several days, with prices remaining steady.

LABARBA KNOCKS CLARK DOWN 5 TIMES IN 12 ROUNDS

Western Wins, 44-22, Over Business

Eastern Extended But Beats Tech in Series, 32 to 27.

Wilson and Walker Lead Red Team in Easy Victory.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

AVORITES ran true to form in the public high school championship series yesterday. Western went into sole possession of second place by virtue of a 42-to-22 victory over Business, while Eastern battled its way out of the cellar position, leaving that post to Tech, which it defeated by a 32-to-27 margin.

Despite the closeness of the score in the second game and the high caliber of basketball exhibited by Western, the double-header was by far the dullest of the scholastic program. the scholastic program and was witnessed by the smallest crowd to date.
Western not only beat the Stenographers decisively, but convinced the majority of fans that Central is in for a mighty hard tussle in Tuesday's game which may decide the race.

Since its defeat in the first Cen-trial game, Western's work has grad-ually improved until yesterday hap-hazard passing and shooting was conspicuous by its absence. The ball was worked close to the basket with the apparent case and grace which makes for a finished scholas-tic team and all of the regulars participated in the scoring.

Business for the most part was unable to cope with Western, except at intervals after Reveille Jones took up the center duties. Western played a tight defensive game which forced the Stenographers to shooting at the moon with indifferent success.

Eastern seemed to retain the form it showed in its great battle against Central earlier in the week, but Tech was also on edge again, due to the return of Louis Berger to the line-up.

It was apparent from the start that the teams were virtually evenly matched. Berger was the center of the works for Tech, while Capt. Hogarth again dominated Eastern's play. The lead juggled from one team to the other, with the score tied at 7 points with the first quarter completed.

Eastern lead in the first part of the second period but Tech rallied to take command at 16 to 15 at the close of the half, but failed to score in the third period, while Eastern was running its count to 25 points.

somewing the first failed to give the signal.

Lewis Depro, at center for Eastern the greater part of the game, gave another convincing exhibition. He kept his man from scoring, was the mainstay of Eastern's passing and found time to contribute three field goals and a pair of fouls. Essex did some fine work until forced from the game on personal fouls.

The Pennsylvania players made their presence felt at most stages of the contest, but when they threatened to draw up on even terms with the Hilltoppers, Bobby Nork or Don Flavin, the Blue and Gray forwards, connected with the iron hoop to send Georgetown away into a safe lead again.

Nork, as usual, was the offensive leader for Georgetown with 13 points, making six field goals and one successful foul toss in three attempts. Col. Ruppert "Key Man," Is View

Yanks' Owner May Be Vital Factor in Baseball Feud.

Meeting Tomorrow to Decide Fate of Johnson, Is Opinion.

Chi. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, was viewed tonight as the "key man" in the baseball drama set for Sunday morning when the American league directors meet to decide whether they will support or oppose their executive, Ban Johnson. It was Col. Ruppert who brought together Johnson and his foe, Commissioner Landis, at the annual major league meeting last month when the club owners gave Landis a vote of confidence in the form of a seven-year extension of his contract as baseball czar, with a $15,000 salary increase.

It is Col. Ruppert, baseball observers say, who, will wield the deciding influence at the Sunday morning meeting, at an exclusive Chicago club, which will determine the league's course of action at the commissioner's hearing Monday on the Cobb-Speaker situation.

Two years ago, when the American leaguers decided to assure Landis that President Johnson would trouble him no more, it was Ruppert who told his fellow magnates, in substance:

"If Ban Johnson is forced out of

"If Ban Johnson is forced out of the American league, I will rip up the Yankee stadium and toss it into the Harlem river."

Whether Col. Ruppert can again heal the breach between Johnson and Com-missioner Landis is the outstanding question of the baseball conferences of Sunday and Monday.

The additional explanation President Johnson has to offer the commissioner next Monday about the dismissal of Cobb and Speaker, Johnson feels, will satisfy the commissioner that the two stars were given a fair opportunity and were discharged when they failed to prove equal to their responsibilities. There is still the possibility, however, that with Commissioner Landis pacified with President Johnson's explanation, the American league executive, who has been in the harness, as he says, for 34 years, may decide voluntarily to retire because of his failing health. The additional explanation Presiden

Johnson tonight had received as surances from the seven American league club owners he invited to Sunday's conference that they would be there.

John K. Tener, former governor of Pennsylvanian and once head of National league, was the newest candidate brought forward by his friends, to-succeed to the presidency of the American league. He resigned in 1918 from the National league after five years in office, when a controversy arose over Pitcher Scott Perry, who was awarded to the Boston Nationals, despite a claim from the Philadelphia Americans. John A. Heydler, the present head of the National league, succeeded him.

3d League Reports Hinted In Cobb-Speaker Case

Special to The Washington Post. Chicago, Jan. 21.-Rumors have chicago, Jan. 21.—Rumors have it that the evidence against Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, not yet made public, but secretly held by Ban Johnson and the American league board of directors, does not refer to crookedness in any games, but shows that both Cobb and Speaker conferred some time during the last year and a half with promoters who proposed to start a third major league. The "charges" against Cobb and Speaker of dickering with promoters of a third league have been made public before, but, according to reports, were denied by both players and supposedly dropped. Even if true the players actions would be no crime. However, it is said the evidence was strong against them. It even was strong against them. It even was strong against them. HALTED BY COURT Injunction Is Upheld; Merits of Case to Be Decided.

TAMPA, Fia., Jan. 21 (By A. P.).—
Racing in Tampa was at a standstill tonight. Beaten on the back turn by court injunctions, race track officials today employed an airplane in a stretch drive to obtain a supersedeas from the State supereme court, but they were ruled out when they reached the judges' stand.

As a result the thoroughbreds and the dogs were led back to their kennels, there to await the decision by the high court on the merits of the cases brought before it on appeal from adverse decisions in lower courts.

Restrained from operating in Hillsborough county on the ground that their system of selling certificates on races constituted gambling, officials of the Tampa Jockey club used an airplane to speed a petition to the supreme court for a ruling. The court declined to intervene, but set Monday for a hearing of the Tampa case on its

Action on Rickard's application to charge a top price of $20 for ringside seats was deferred until next Tuesday. The Madison Square Garden promoter did not fare so well in his attempt to obtain approval of a welterweight match set for February 25 between Ace Hudkins, Webraska Wildcat, and Joe Dundee, of Baltimore. The board considered that Willie Harmon, of New York, was entitled to prior consideration over Hudkins as a welterweight contender and suggested that a fight between Harmon and Dundee precede the Hudkins-Dundee bout.

Request was made on behalf of Red Chapman, Boston featherweight, that a definite date be fixed for Chapman's return elimination, fight with Benny Bass, of Philadelphia.

Bass would agree to another match-but the board announced the hibited from engaging in any other bout here until he fulfilled his engagement with the Boston contender. Chapman lost their first bout on a foul in the open-ing round.

Three eight-round preliminary bouts to the Graham-Rosenberg bantam championship match at Madison Square Carden on February 4 were approved bringing together Tony Canzoneri and Johnny Green, both of New York: Eddie Anderson, of Wyoming, and Andre Routis, of France; Carl Duane and Johnny Felucci, of New York.

Sore on leg healed after years of suffering

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10;—
"I just want to let you know what your Resinol has done for me. For many years I had a bad sore on my leg. I had tried a number of different treatments, including Electric Baths and different recommended salves. I suffered terribly at times as my work compelled me to be on my feet a great deal. Several weeks ago I saw Resinol advertised and in desperation I bought a small jar of this Ointment, not believing it would do me any good. However, after using it for one week I was surprised to see the ulcer was healing and by the time I had findshed the second jar the healing was complete. I am glad to tell the world what Resinol Ointment has done for me and I will be glad to recommend it to any sufferer." (Signed) Max Endert, 63½ Jersey Street.

YOUR INCOME TAX

The revenue act of 1926 provides that if the status of a taxpayer changes during the year his personal exemption shall be determined by apportionment, in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer was single, married, or the head of a family. The act of 1924 contained a similar provision. For example, a couple married on July 31, 1926, and living together on December 31, 1926, may file a joint return and claim an exemption of $3,208.33. That is, seven-twelfths of $1,500 for the husband while single, or $875, plus seven-twelfths of $1,500 for the wife while single, plus five-twelfths of $3,500, or $1,458.33. for the period during which they were margied. If separate returns are made husband and wife may each claim a personal exemption of $1,604.17. The husband is entitled to seven-twelfths of $1,500, or $875, for the period during which he was single, and one-half of five-twelfths of $3,500, or $799.17, for the period during which he was married. The wife is entitled to similar exemptions. In case separate returns are filed, the joint exemption of $1,458.33 for the period during which he was married the joint exemption of $1,458.33 for the period during which they were married may be taken either by husband or wife, or divided between them.

A person who, on July 31, ceased being the head of a family—the support in one household of a relative or relatives being discontinued—is entitled to an exemption of $2,666.67, which is seven-twelfths of $1,500.

With regard to the $400 credit for each dependent, the taxpayer's status as of the last day of the taxable year determines this credit. If, during the year, his support of such dependent ceased, he is not entitled to this credit.

star failure was due to poor management and unwise ventures in correlated lines and not to any inherent fault in the normal business of the company, it cocurred to a number of creditors and stockholders that if seemed a shame to sell such a lucrative business under the second preferred of 12,000 shares, par value $10, paying cumulative dividends of 3 per cent, and '12,000 shares of common stock to be given to purchasers of the first preferred. The first preferred will be offered to stockholders of the old company at par, then to the creditors and then to the general public. In this manner $60,000 in cash would be raised, and of this sum $30,000 and the entire second preferred stocks is to be paid in liquidation of creditors claims.

That the company would earn sufficient money to pay dividends on the preferred in eight years appears a reasonable expectation. The gross sales of the old company under receivership operation for the four months from July 26, 1926, to November 27, 1926, was $610,000. With difficulties caused by litigation, lack of credit and the difficulty in securing service of competent clerks out of the way, it is estimated that a reorganized company would do approximately $2,000,000 a year without expansion or increased expense, and being a net income of $40,000 a year.

Mortgage Outlook Bright.

That the outlook for the first six months of 1927 in the mortgage and investment field is unusually bright is the opinion of Frank J. Hughes, president of the National Mortgage & Investment Co.

"The building industry is active." Mr. Hughes asserted. "In every part of the country new buildings, business houses and apartments are being built, and yet there is an increasing demand for accommodations. With the present prosperity, which, with minor exceptions, is spread throughout the present prosperity, which, with minor exceptions, is spread throughout the country, the outlook promises to continue favorable.

be allowed a free hand to conduct those negotiations.

"And when the Senate undertakes to interfere, this action is likely to be construed by Mexico as an indication that the Congress will not sustain the policy which the administration may be insisting upon.

"If you turn the proposition around, suppose Mr. Calles had been insisting that he would not recede on certain propositions and was trying to make his policy go and the Mexican congress were to pass a similar resolution to this. It would be interpreted by our people to mean that there was no strength in his arm and that the Mexican people were not behind him.

"While the administration is carrying on troublesome negotiations of this character and while they are showing good faith and carrying out a peaceful policy. I believe the Senate should not interfere."

Reed Explains Stand.

Reed Explains Stand.

In response to questions, Senator Reed said he thought the American people are behind the administration's policy of not permitting American property to be confiscated. That, he pointed out, was the matter it was proposed to arbitrate. He took no stock in the bolshevik idea and suggested it was none of our business what they teach in Mexico. Referring to some Americans imbued with the Calles viewpoint, Senator Reed said they were suffering from "Mexicanitis."

Senator Edge, who voted against the resolution, said:
"Generally speaking, I recognize the right of the Senate to express its views on international matters of this character. And all of us favor the principle of arbitration.
"But in a delicate problem like the present Mexican problem, I question the advisability of the senatorial action.

"Resolved, That while by virtue of sovereignty the duty devolves upon this government to protect the lives and property of its nationals in foreign countries, which duty is not to be neglected or disregarded, it is nevertheless sound policy, cohaistent with the honor and best interest of the United States and promotive of international peace and good will, to submit to an arbitral tribunal which shall apply the principles of international law the convoveries with Mexico relating to the alleged confiscation or impairment of the property to American nationals and corporations in Mexico, the arbitration agreement to provide for protection of all American property rights pending the final outcome of the arbitration.

"That in good will and friendliness efforts should be made and persisted in to effect arrangements which will commit the two governments to the policy of abiding by and executing awards that may be made in consequence of such arrangements to arbitrate."

"But in a delicate problem like the present Mexican problem, I question the advisability of the enatorial action proposed in the resolution, in view of the fact that senators are not absolutely familiar with all the intricacies involved, whereas the administration has the facts. We must be very sure we are not interfering with delicate matters. The views of other countries thay have to be considered by our government before we act. Therefore I voted against the resolution though I favor cooperation between the Senate and the executive in international matters."

Resolution to Curb President.

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 13 to 3, with Senators Borah, Johnson, Moses, Lenroot, Willis, Capper, Gillett, Swanson, Pittman, Robinson, Walsh of Montans, Harrison and Shipstead voting aye and Senators McLean, Edge and Reed of Missouri voting no. Senator Prazier introduced the fol-owing resolution yesterday: "Whereas, the Constitution speci-cally limits the power to declare war to the Congress of the United States, is the provision section 8, enumerating among the powers specifically reserved to Congress to declare war; and Lean, Edge and Reed of Missouri voting no.

Senator Borah, chairman of the committee, said:

"I think the resolution fully expresses our desire to settle this matter by arbitration. It therefore meets with my heasty approval. I have been an advocate of arbitration in this matter from the very beginning. The only thing involved is property. And if we can't arbitrate that question, there is no use to talk longer about arbitration."

Senator Robinson said:

"The amended resolution contains the substance of the orginal resolution and makes clear the suggestion in the original language that the agreement to arbitrate shall contemplate the protection of the rights of Americans ment to arbitrate shall contemplate the protection of the rights of Ameri-cans pending the arbitration, the ap-plication of the principles of interna-tional law and arrangement for the carrying out of the awards when made. "It is expected that the resolutions will be reported to the Senate in the very near future." Resolved. That it is the sense of the Senate that the President of the United States should not exercise the powers of the commander in chief of the army and navy of the United States to send any of the armed forces of the nation into Mexico or to mobilize troops on the Mexican border, or to assemble fighting units of the navy in waters adjacent to Mexico, while the Congress of the United States is not in session, but that if and when he contemplates such action, he shall immediately summon the Congress in special session and communicate to it the reasons for such proposed military action."

Senator Robinson was saked whether the language in the resolution respect-ing protection of American rights "pending the arbitration" meant that "pending the arbitration" meant that Calles could not go ahead and confis-cate American property and arbitrate "Certainly it means that," Mr. Robinson replied

Little Interference Contem- Plea Will Be Made Monday plated: American Interests

(By the Associated Press.)

The American government intends to interfere as little as possible with American loans abroad, President Coolidge taking the view that the American public has the right to make such use of lic has the right to make such use of lic has the right to make such use of lic has the right to make such use of lic available resources as it wishes. He feels, however, that some kind of control is advisable to see that investments abroad by individuals or banks do not conflict with the interests of the country as a whole.

Possible objection by the American government to foreign loans, it was said yesterday at the White House, can be based chiefly on whether they are to be used for the establishment of foreign monopolies to the advantage of this country and whether America has sufficient funds to permit the transfer abroad of large sums of money.

Owing to the questions involved the Secretary of State consults with the Secretary of State consults with the Secretaries of Treasury and Commerce when State Department approval is requested of a foreign loan.

President Coolidge deviated from usual presidential custom yesterday by personally approving the new commission as commander in the naval reserves, voted to Richard E. Byrd by Congress in recognition of his polar flight.
